

Past New Investigator Research Grant Recipients

A global leader in child health care, research, and training, SickKids is serious about nurturing talent and enhancing the capacity for discoveries that improve life for patients and their families. Since 2001, we've invested researchers at health institutions across Canada with our New Investigator Research Grants. This unique program, a partnership between SickKids and the Canadian Institutes of Health Research, offers a springboard to Canada's top health research talent. When early-career researchers need it most, these peer-reviewed awards provide funding, access to mentors, and networking opportunities. Our national grants have launched the careers of health-care game changers whose discoveries are transforming children's lives with novel therapies, new standards of care, and internationally recognized research programs:
